The Stopping the Violence against Women

(STV) counselling program provides services to women and independent female youth who have experience violence in their intimate relationships, sexual assault, and/or child abuse.

Ishtar's STV program is accessible and welcoming to all women residing in the Langley and Aldergrove areas. All STV services are offered free of charge. STV services include:

Individual Counselling

We offer up to 24 individual counselling sessions over a two year period. Women who are still living in an abusive situation, or women who have recently been assaulted are prioritized for immediate service. All other clients are served on a first-come, first served basis. There is a waitlist for counselling.

STV counsellors work from a counselling model informed by feminist and trauma intervention theories. We focus on the following:

- Safety planning and emotional support for clients at risk of ongoing violence
- Providing information about abuse and violence against women
- Helping clients explore and understand how they have been impacted by their experiences of abuse/violence
- Empowering clients toward increased control over their own lives and toward finding their voices
- Assisting clients with enhancing their current strengths, and also developing new skills that will allow them to participate more fully in life

Group Counselling

Groups usually run for 2 hours, once a week, for 8 weeks. There may be a wait list for groups.

Building Resilience

Participants will develop skills for responding to traumatic stress and life challenges with emotional resilience. Discussion topics include: Common reactions to trauma/abuse, identifying current coping strategies, practicing alternative strategies for tolerating distress and regulating strong emotions, and exploring the connection between self-compassion and healing.

Surviving Relationship Violence & Abuse

This group is specifically for women who are experiencing, or who have experienced, violence and abuse in an intimate relationship. Discussion topics include: Understanding what is relationship violence and abuse, long-term impacts of violence and abuse on women and their children, understanding why women stay in abusive relationships, letting go of guilt, managing contacts with abusive former partners, and developing healthy future relationships.

Healthy Boundaries

Participants will develop skills for establishing and maintaining healthy boundaries when interacting with others. Discussion topics include: Introduction to boundaries, understanding how abuse and violence impact boundaries, identifying personal boundary problems, responding to boundary violations, and assertive communication.

How to Access STV Services

Contact the STV intake counsellor at 604-534-1011 to request an intake appointment. Every effort is made to return intake messages within 2 business days, and to schedule intake appointments within two weeks of first contact.

The intake appointment is an opportunity for us to assess your needs and determine our ability to address those needs. After the intake appointment clients may be waitlisted for Stopping the Violence services or referred to other resources at Ishtar or within the community.
